COVELESKIE THINKS HE'LL BEAT DODGERS

Sure of It Says Pole if He Can Get Spitball Working Rightly.

27,000 CROWD BALL PARK

Intense Excitement Permeates Every Nook and Corner of Cleveland at Time For Opening of Fourth Game of World Series; Weather Fine.

By Associated Press.

LEAGUE PARK, CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—The Cleveland tribe, their faces painted in ochre, sounded the tocsin today for a tribal uprising against their foe, the Brooklyn Dodgers. Easily 27,000 persons—one of the largest Cleveland hosts to ever witness a ball game in this lake city—jammed League park to see the American league pennant winners turn back the invading Brooklyns who hold the edge of an odd game over Chief Speaker's warriors.

Stanley Coveleskie, Polish apostle of the moistened ball, stood prepared to feed the poisoned pill to the unsuspecting National leaguers.

"If I can get my 'spitter' working we can put this game in the bat bag," said Coveleskie, and there are thousands of his friends out here today who were ready to declare that the jump on Covey's spitball would make a grasshopper hide from mortification.

All Cleveland came to League park today, or tried to. Those who did not stayed home to welcome the hundreds who surged into town from all over Ohio and other states.

The city was somewhat low in spirits over the double bumping in Brooklyn and Mayor Fitzgerald issued an official proclamation on his best office paper for everybody to get out and root today for Speaker and his men. All factory whistles blew at noon and flags were flown where flags never flew before.

"No flags for us in Brooklyn," said Jimmy Johnston, the Dodgers' third sacker, "except at the weather bureau."

Hundreds stood in line all night to get into the unreserved stands. A shark, stuffed in a sardine box had as much room to spread as the throng which filled reaches of the open stands by game time. Even the early comers found seats as scarce as a ton of coal at last year's prices.

Speculators sold seats in the reserved stands for $30 apiece and there were those who bid higher for them when the supply ran out. Those that could not get in looked vainly for a flat roof to stand on but the houses across the street from the park had hip roofs, fine for shedding rain but without foothold for a standee.

It was a fine day for the sport. The sun beat down warm.

CANCER IS CURABLE, SURGEONS DECLARE IN PITTSBURG MEET

Should Be Taken in Early Stages and Treated Under Direction of Experts.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 9.—That cancer can be completely cured if cared for in its early stages, that the laity should become better informed upon matters of health and should not hesitate to seek the advice of surgeons whose efficiency is recognized and that public citizens should assist in the move for the standardization of hospitals, were the high lights brought out at the public meeting in the ball room of the William Penn hotel Friday. The meeting, held in connection with the first annual clinical congress of the Pennsylvania section, American College of Surgeons, was addressed by surgeons who stand out foremost among the members of their profession.

Dr. Carl Davidson, professor in surgery at the University of Illinois; Dr. Emil Bock an eminent Chicago surgeon, and Dr. Frank L. Hupp of Wheeling, W. Va., spoke on the prevention of cancer mortality. Dr. Donald Guthrie of Sayre pointed out that thousands of lives could be saved yearly if the laity were properly informed about cancer and also showed that during the war more deaths were caused in the United States by tuberculosis than by bullets and shells on the battlefields of France. He concluded by expressing the hope that in the cabinet of the next President of the United States the name of an eminent surgeon would appear as secretary of public health.

COAL PRIORITY ZONE EXTENDED INTO THE WEST

Effective Next Friday Over 2,000 Cars Daily to Be Diverted.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Action to satisfy demands for domestic coal in various states was taken last night by the Interstate Commerce Commission in an order requiring railroads east of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico to furnish coal cars to mines in preference to any other use.

Former orders of this character applied only east of the Mississippi river. The present order, the commission said, would run until further notice, but be relaxed as the situation warranted.

The commission also ordered all outstanding permits for use of coal cars for other freight cancelled, but announced that arrangements to continue the movement of certain essentials, such as sugar beets, to factories, would be made.

Working in conjunction with coal operators and railroads, a program has been formulated, the commission said, which is expected to substantially meet domestic coal needs. It is planned to transport approximately 21,000 cars daily for this purpose in Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Eastern Kentucky, Eastern Tennessee, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Attention is also being given to needs of domestic consumers in other states, the commission added.

As public utilities and institutions have accumulated some stocks of coal under the commission's priority order, that order has been superseded by a new regulation, which, the commission announced, will care for special cases of real emergency. After October 14, preferential car supply for public institutions will be afforded only upon approval of the commission.

Despite an increase in coal production which up to September 25 exceeded that of last year by 51,000,000 tons, the commission said, "there has not been a sufficient production of the sizes of coal for domestic purposes to satisfy the public demand."

"I want to tell you," he said, "our soldiers fought in Europe not for this league, but for one thing, and one thing only—the United States of America."

"Every working man should ask the Democratic speakers to explain to him Article 23 of the League of Nations and Article 13 of the treaty with their accompanying addenda," continued Mr. Roosevelt.

Article Ten—French Version

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Senator Harding performed a public service when he emphasized the fact that the French and English versions of Article XXI of the league covenant are radically different in meaning and in their effect upon the United States should it become a member. The literal translation of the French makes the Monroe Doctrine subordinate to the league of nations, while the English version upon which American opinion has been almost wholly based, tends to give the impression that the Monroe Doctrine is independent of the league and not subject to its jurisdiction. It is true, of course, that both versions are given equal weight by the treaty, but in the event of conflict in the application of the covenant to a specific case the league council would determine which should prevail, which would be equivalent to decreeing the end of the Monroe Doctrine.

Another section of the covenant where there is a fundamental difference between the French and English versions is the famous Article X. In guaranteeing the "territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the league," the English version says that "In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled." Proponents of the covenant have referred to that language many times in the course of their arguments declaring that under it the council was merely empowered to give advice to member nations as to how they should fulfill the obligation incurred in the first sentence of the article. They have insisted that after that advice was rendered it would be within the discretion of the member state as to whether it would follow it or not.

The actual French reads as follows: "... le conseil avise aux moyens d'assurer l'exécution de cette obligation." Now the phrase "avise aux moyens" does not mean "give advice upon the means." The correct translation of "avise" in connection with the words which follow is "sees to, plans, determines, provides for." In other words, the council, instead of merely giving advice which a final authority may follow, is the final authority itself and its decrees must be followed by members, subject, of course, to appeal to the league assembly, a right which every member possesses.

Article X is arbitrary and autocratic to the last degree. Its first sentence specifically obligates every member to preserve the boundaries of other members, and the second sentence specifically empowers the council to determine the means for making that preservation effective, regardless of the course some individual member might wish to pursue. It is idle to say that the English version lessens the power of the council. As in the case of Article XXI, the council determines which version shall prevail when there is conflict between them. Of course, in its interpretation of Article X the council is going to accept the version which bestows the most power upon it.

The American people are unalterably opposed to the league covenant as they know it through the English version with which they are familiar, but if they could be made acquainted with the traps set for the United States in the actual French rendition of the [illegible] would think that the [illegible]. It must be borne in mind that through the [illegible] of the foreign-controlled council the French version would always govern and the fact that a [illegible] ever was [illegible] information [illegible] the English version [illegible] before the league [illegible].

BOY'S BODY FOUND

The body of Joseph Tracy, [illegible]-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph of Ohiopyle, who disappeared several weeks ago and was given up for drowned, was found Friday afternoon in the "mill race" along the Youghiogheny river a short distance from the Joseph home.

West Penn employes putting in a new wheel at the hydro-electric plant operated by the Ohiopyle falls made the discovery. The body was held fast by the wheel. The funeral was held this afternoon.

Heretofore the classes have been held in the committee room and now three rooms have been furnished. One is fully equipped. Here the probationer is taught the art of making a bed, and fundamentals of nursing before going on the floor. This Announcement—by far the most startling ever made by this store—should cause the most unusual response ever won by a Kobacker advertisement. If the public realizes the full force of this statement The Big Store will not be large enough to accommodate the crowds, and within 24 hours the news will be flashed throughout this part of the state that Kobackers have again set the pace.

The market in many lines has broken. In some cases it has fallen very sharply. The public, undoubtedly, has a right to share in the lowered prices.

And the Kobacker store comes and says to you that everything in it—everything—is priced so as to take advantage of every possible market condition. Every instance where the market has been lowered—and we have our ears to it every hour, whether that lowering has been big or little—Kobacker prices have been made to meet it.

Thousands and thousands of dollars worth of merchandise—the largest stocks ever under The Kobacker store roof—are now here, and every dollar's worth of this merchandise is now priced in accordance with the new low prices; regardless of its cost to us.

Henry Ford led the automobile manufacturers in price reduction by announcing lower prices for motor cars. The Big Store is leading Dry Goods merchants in Connellsville with this announcement.

Just at this minute you, the public, are looking for and demanding, as you have a right to demand—lowered prices.

You are paying less for sugar. You demand that rents come down. They must, and the Kobacker store gives you exactly what you ask for in merchandise. It says:

Everything here is priced with the market. If the market prices on any merchandise is lowered, Kobacker's retail price is lowered in proportion at once.

Just as Kobackers startled Connellsville seven years ago by announcing the founding of Connellsville's only Underselling Department Store, so does The Kobacker store today come with this revolutionary announcement.

For seven years Kobackers have undersold—under all conditions this was the case in pre-war times—in war times and in post-war times. Upon this solid foundation of Economy to the public, Kobackers have developed into the busiest store in Connellsville—and now in order that we may uphold our reputation for Underselling—it is fitting that this price-smashing goes into effect, offering even greater values than you have come to expect in the past.

To repeat the big idea back of this announcement—No matter what its cost to us; no matter what loss such action makes nevessary—everything in this store is so priced as to meet every possible market drop. You can be assured of lower prices here always.

Life Contracts

One of my old customers told me the other day that I was a good tailor, but a poor business man.

When I asked why, he replied; "You make your clothes too good." "Look at this suit," he added; "you made it for me long ago and it's just as good today—good style, good fit no signs of wear. How do you expect me to buy any new clothes if I can't wear out my old ones?"

Then he asked me how I did it. There is no secret about it. I simply use Detmer Woolens—the finest woolens of standard quality, and today that means the finest in the world. The trimmings are the highest grade I can obtain. Then I build the garments to fit and hand-tailor them to stay, and there you are.

When I told this to my customer he said: "Well, I want to have you stay in business and take the contract to keep me well dressed for the rest of my life." Incidentally, I might add that he has sent me several new customers already. Maybe good tailoring is not poor business after all.

What I want is a few more life contracts like this one. I would rather sell a man a few good suits than many poor ones.

I would like to take over the contract of keeping you well dressed for the rest of your life. I believe I can save you money and give you more honest-to-goodness satisfaction than you have ever known before.

Won't you come in and inspect my stock? I promise you that no matter how much you like the look and feel of the fabrics—and you will like them—they will only begin to suggest how much you will like the look and feel of the clothes when you have them on your back.

"SOME FANS" PROPOSE TO KEEP CALVIN M'NUTT HERE; HE DECLINES WITH THANKS

WILL GO TO JOHNSTOWN

"Some fans" of Connellsville, who had in mind a plan to hold Calvin McNutt, one of the most promising halfbacks and basketball players in the school here, instead of leaving tomorrow for his new home in Johnstown, will be disappointed to learn that the player himself has requested there be no further steps taken as it will not be possible for him to remain in the Connellsville high school.

A letter received by The Courier yesterday stated "it was with regret that we (some fans) read of McNutt's going to Johnstown." The letter further stated it was proposed to hold a dance and obtain sufficient funds to retain the athletes in the city.

McNutt was surprised when shown the letter. He said he didn't think he would stay and modestly added that while he appreciated the intention of the "fans" he hardly thought he was valuable enough [illegible] to warrant such steps. Later in the evening he told the sports writer he would not remain here if any such steps were taken and that [illegible] for matters to drop [illegible].

McNutt has the [illegible] for football [illegible] in the end runs [illegible] although Coach Rupp is developing new backfield men. He won't be a stranger when he gets to Johnstown, as he helped materially to keep the Connellsville ball moving towards the Flood City goal when the team played there last Saturday.

The posts through which ropes will be strung to keep the crowd off the field have all been put into place. Student Manager Huey and Assistant Manager Herwick have been steady workers and have done well with their small force of volunteer assistants. The job was completed last night and the field was laid off this morning.

The Dunbar township high school football team played at West Newton this afternoon, against the high school at that place. Coach Honsberger's boys expected a victory.

* * * *

Some Uniontown football fans came to Connellsville yesterday afternoon under the impression that there was a game at Fayette Field. They believed Peabody was coming here on Friday.

* * * *

The players and fans who watch the practices at Fayette Field every night are keeping their eyes peeled for scouts of other schools. Anyone would have poor chances of walking away with an advance knowledge of Connellsville's plays.

* * * *

We knew there were lots of surprised fans when they saw the Coker line-up at Fayette Field this afternoon. And there is still one more heavy lineman to report.

* * * *

As Connellsville is going to handle it Greensburg this year it certainly is too bad the game isn't coming off where the home folks can see it. Scottdale will get its defeat at Fayette Field.

* * * *

Coach Rupp has a bunch of promising youngsters on the second string and certainly will not lack for experienced men to open next year's campaign.

BROWNSVILLE GRIDDERS IN HOSPITAL, INJURED

Two of the players of the South Brownsville high school football team, William Lopp, left end, and "Bus" Kelley, left guard, were injured to such an extent Friday afternoon in the game with the Mount Pleasant high school at Mount Pleasant that they were removed to the hospital. Their injuries resulted from being kicked, it is claimed. Although badly bruised and very nervous, the two players are [illegible] condition and they will be able to go home tomorrow. A number of other players also received slight injuries. Elder, Thompson and [illegible] received sprained ankles, and [illegible] received a badly bruised shoulder.

ANOTHER BOUT ARRANGED FOR NEXT SATURDAY HERE

Another big boxing bout arranged yesterday between Bud Brown of Homestead and Eddie Carver of Pittsburg, who will go eight rounds in the semi-final to the Billy Carter and Johnny Donnelly set-to, which takes place next Saturday at Slavish hall on the West Side, completes the number of contests that take place before the Fayette A. C. The opening bout between Johnny Pollock of Dawson and Frankie Peletz of Brownsville, who are booked to go six rounds, has created much interest, but when the fans realize that another feature bout has been secured, that of Brown and Carver, they will then understand that the local club is making every effort to give them a real fistic treat.

In the signing of Carver and Brown the club has brought together two boys who have featured many main bouts in the Pittsburg district, Detroit, and elsewhere; they are both well and favorably known for the fast brand of milling that they put up. Brown will leave his home in Homestead Sunday night, as he intends to do his training for the contest in this city. Bud will work out with Billy Carter every day until the contest at the armory with the local champion.

EDDIE ROUSH AMBIDEXTROUS

The story of how Eddie Roush, star outfielder of the Reds, can throw as well with his right hand as with his left dates back to his kid days. He says:

"I have always been a natural southpaw. Throwing and batting left-handed is my regular style. But when I started out as an amateur in my home town in Indiana I found it impossible to secure a right-handed glove. The only gloves in stock were for the left hand; also I was called upon to play in the infield a great deal, and a left-handed infielder is not so good, so I learned how to throw with my right hand. I have always batted left-handed, though."

RED LITERATURE SEIZED

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Discovery of vast amounts of radical literature in the possession of Nicolai Jazzinski and John Holoeny, declared to be two of the most dangerous radicals in America, who were arrested here last night by agents of the Department of Justice, was announced today. In Jazzinski's possession was found nearly a ton of communist articles, including samples of a new pamphlet advocating armed revolution by foreign elements in this country. One hundred thousand of these, it was said, were shipped out of Chicago yesterday by Jazzinski by express. They were traced and are being held for the authorities.

The agents said the documents found in Holoeny's possession gave evidence that he was associated with a Russian anarchistic group. It was said virtually every anarchist document ever printed in the Russian language was found among his effects.

THE GREAT SHADOW

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Author of "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes"

Copyright by A. Conan Doyle.

He jumped up, bowing with his hand on his heart in his queer fashion. "If you would allow me to have the honor," he cried and then, seeing that we were all laughing, he began to laugh also, but I am sure that there was really no thought of a joke in his mind.

I could never make out what his age could be, nor could Jim Horscroft either. Sometimes we thought that he was an oldish man that looked young and at others that he was a youngish man who looked old. On the whole we thought that he might be about forty or forty-five, though it was hard to see how he could have had so much of life in the time. But one day we got talking of ages, and that he surprised us.

I had been saying that I was just twenty, and Jim said that he was twenty-seven.

"Then I am the most old of the three," said De Lapp.

We laughed at this, for by our reckoning he might almost have been our father.

"But not by so much," said he, archly, his brown. "I was [illegible]-and-twenty in December."

And it was this even more than his age which made us understand what an extraordinary life it must have been that he had led. He saw our amusement, and laughed at it.

"I have lived. I have lived," he cried. "I have spent my days and my nights. I led a company in a battle where five nations were engaged when I was but fourteen. I made a king turn pale at the words I whispered in his ear when I was twenty. I had a hand in remaking a kingdom and putting a fresh king upon a fresh throne almost every year that I came of age. Mon Dieu! I have lived my life."

That was the most that I ever heard him confess of his past life, and he only shook his head and laughed when we tried to get something more out of him. There were times when we thought that he was but a clever impostor—for what could a man of such experience and talents be loitering here in Berwickshire for?—but one day there came an incident which showed us that he had, indeed, a history in the past.

You will remember that there was an old officer of the Peninsular war who lived no great way from us, the same who danced round the bonfire with his sister and the two maids. He had gone up to London on some business about his pension and his wound money and the choice of having some land given him, so that he did not come back until late in the autumn. One of the first days after his return he came down to see us, and there for the first time he clapped eyes on De Lapp. Never in my life did I look upon so astonished a face, and he stared at our friend for a long minute without saying so much as a word. De Lapp stared back at him equally hard, but there was no recognition in his eyes.

"I do not know who you are, sir," he said at last, "but you look at me as if you had seen me before."

"So I have," answered the major.

"Never to my knowledge."

"But I'll swear it!"

"Where, then?"

"At the village of Astorga, in the year '8."

De Lapp started, and stared again at our neighbor. "Mon Dieu! what a chance!" he cried; "and you were the British parliamentaire! I remember you very well indeed, sir. Let me have a whisper in your ear." He took him aside, and talked very earnestly with him in French for a quarter of an hour, gesticulating with his hands, and explaining something, while the major nodded his old grizzled head from time to time. At last they seemed to come to some agreement, and I heard the major say "parole d'honneur" several times, and afterwards "fortune de la guerre." But after that I always noticed that the major never used the same free fashion of speech that we did toward our keeper, but bowed when he addressed him, and treated him with a wonderful deal of respect.

Jim Horscroft was at home all that summer, but late in the autumn he went back to Edinburgh again for the winter session, and as he intended to work very hard, and get his degree next spring if he could, he said that he would bide up there for the Christmas. So there was a great leave-taking between him and Cousin Edie, and he was to put up his plate and to marry her as soon as he had the right to practice. I never knew a man love a woman more fondly than he did her, and she liked him well enough in a way, for indeed in the whole of Scotland she could not find a finer-looking man; but when it came to marriage I think she grieved a little at the thought that all her wonderful dreams should end in nothing more than in being the wife of a country surgeon.

I was never very sure at that time whether Edie cared for De Lapp or not. When Jim was at home they took little notice of each other. After he was gone they were thrown more together, which was natural enough, as he had taken up so much of her time before.

Well, the summer and the autumn and the best part of the winter passed away, and we were still all very happy together. We got well into the year 1815, and the great emperor was still eating his heart out at Elba, and all the ambassadors were wrangling together at Vienna as to what they should do with the lion's skin, now that they had so fairly hunted him down. We never thought that what all these high and mighty people were doing could have any bearing upon us, and as to war—why, everybody was agreed that the great shadow was lifted from us forever, and that, unless the allies quarreled among themselves there would not be a shot fired in Europe for another fifty years.

There was one incident, however, that stands out very clearly in my memory—I think that it must have happened about the February of this year—and I will tell it to you before I go any further.

You know what the Border peel castles are like, I have no doubt. They were just square keeps, built every here and there along the line, so that the folk might have some place of protection against raiders and mosstroopers. When Percy and his men were over the Marches, then the people would drive some of their cattle into the yard of the tower, shut up the big gate, and light a fire in the brazier at the top, which would be answered by all the other peel towers, until the lights would go twinkling up to the Lammermuir hills, and so carry the news on to the Pentlands and to Edinburgh. But now, of course, all these old keeps were warped and crumbling, and made fine nesting places for the wild birds.

One day I had been on a very long walk, away over to leave a message at the Laidlaw Armstrongs, who live two miles on this side of Ayton. About five o'clock, just before the sunset, I found myself on the brae path, with the gable end of West Inch peeping up in front of me, and the old peel tower lying on my left. And as I stared I suddenly saw the face of a man twinkle for a moment in one of the holes in the wall.

It was so queer that I was determined to come to the bottom of it; so, tired as I was, I turned my shoulder on home, and walked swiftly toward the tower. The grass stretches right up to the very base of the wall, and my feet made little noise until I reached the crumbling arch where the old gate used to be. I peeped through and there was Bonaventure de Lapp, standing inside the keep, and peeping out through the very hole at which I had seen his face. He was turned half away from me, and it was clear that he had not seen me at all, for he was staring, with all his eyes over in the direction of West Inch. As I advanced my foot rattled the rubble that lay in the gateway, and he turned round with a start and faced me.

"Hullo!" said I, "what are you doing here?"

"I may ask you that," said he.

"And I because, as you may well have observed, I have very much interest for all that has to do with the military, and of course castles are among them. You will excuse me for one moment, my dear Jack," and he stepped out suddenly through the hole in the wall, so as to be out of my sight.

But I was very much too curious to excuse him so easily. I shifted my ground swiftly, to see what it was that he was after. He was standing outside, and waving his hand frantically, as in a signal.

"What are you doing?" I cried, and then, running out to his side, I looked across the moors to see whom he was beckoning to.

"You go too far, sir," said he angrily; "I didn't thought you would have gone so far. A gentleman has the freedom to act as he choose, without your being the spy upon him. If we are to be friends, you must not interfere in my affairs."

"I don't like these secret doings," said I, "and my father would not like them, either."

"Your father can speak for himself, and there is no secret," said he curtly. "It is you, with your imaginings, that make a secret. Tut, tut, tut! I have no patience with such foolishness." And, without so much as a nod, he turned his back upon me and started walking swiftly to West Inch.

THE BEST ON EARTH

Says Mrs. Staples of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I could not eat or sleep for six months, had fainting spells and could not walk without help for three months, caused by female trouble. My cousin, who was a doctor, told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me greatly. Then during the Change of Life I used the same remedy. I am seventy years old now and am able to do my own housework and walk one mile to church every Sunday morning and evening. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends having the same troubles as I had. Your remedy is the best on earth. I cannot find words to express my gratitude to it."—Mrs. SUSAN C. STAPLES, 167 'B School St., Taunton, Mass.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, such as displacements, inflammation, and ulceration. Why don't you try it?

Strive To Have Healthy Skin

Next time you are in a gathering of women note the different conditions apparent in complexion. You will see some filled with blackheads, some dry and rough, some smooth and greasy, some smeared with rouge, some streaked with heavy metallic powders and once in a while you will see one that is a demonstration of intelligence from every point of view. The color is rosy, the skin is clear and smooth, the pores are small and open, the powder does not show on the firm vigorous skin. Every woman can have a good complexion if she will only use a little discretion. If you would acquire real beauty, the beauty of perfect health, you must replenish your worn-out nerves with lecithin, Nature's own nerve restorer, and put into your blood the invigorating iron which Nature intended it to have for health. In most of the modern foods these and other vitalizing elements have been largely eliminated. Yet to be healthy and beautiful the system must have them. They are found in Bio-feren, not only in proper proportions to restore weakened vitality but in such form as the system can best assimilate them.

And Bio-feren in its pellet form is easy and palatable to take—no liquid iron discoloration of the teeth, no unpleasant taste.

There is no secret or mystery about Bio-feren. Doctors prescribe it regularly because they know exactly what it contains as well as what it will do and they know they could not formulate a better upbuilding tonic.

The action of Bio-feren on the system is so beneficial, we are so sure of its giving you positive health and vigor, providing, of course, there is no serious, chronic ailment such as cancer, tuberculosis, etc., that we only sell it on the condition that you agree to return the empty package and accept a refund of your money unless you are entirely satisfied.

There is no use waiting for health and beauty. It is better to do things today than tomorrow. Go to your physician today—right now—he will advise Bio-feren. Then start taking it at once as he advises or as directions on the package call for. The guarantee protects your money. Interesting booklet may be had for the asking.

Financial Loss Due to Colds.

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. Much of this loss can be avoided by treating every cold as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won a wide reputation and immense sale by its cures of this disease. Try it. You are certain to be pleased with its pleasant taste and the prompt relief which it affords.—Adv.

Add Ten Hours of Leisure to Your Week

Time, a wise man said, is something that can neither be added to nor subtracted from.

Yet we can add ten hours of leisure to your week with our Family Laundry Service. This is not the usual laundry service—it is, rather, a special service that we have developed to meet your special washday needs.

We take your entire washing. We cleanse everything—all without rubbing. By our method soft water and fluffy suds bubble through your clothing much in the same way as they do when you souse and rinse your daintier things in a wash bowl. Then we dry them, without wringing, in warm pure air, imparting to them the much desired freshness.

All the flat pieces, like bed linen, tablecloths, pillowslips and napkins, we iron beautifully—you will enjoy displaying them to your guests.

The children's dresses, your own skirts and shirtwaists, and such other things as need it, we starch, ready for you to iron.

But the amount of ironing we leave for you is slight, for our drying process is such that many things, like undergarments, can be worn immediately, without ironing.

Then we deliver your package—invitingly clean—deliver it to you at a definite time each week. In short, we do ten hours of the work of washday for you—we give you ten hours leisure for less laborious things.

Let us acquaint you better with this service. The cost of this modern laundry service is slight. Telephone and we will have our driver call for your family bundle.

O! Children, Read This!

A LETTER FROM SANTA

October 1, 1920.
Christmas Land, N. P.

Dear Boys and Girls:—

How have you been behaving since last New Years? Have you been good? I have been so busy getting heaps of games and dolls and all sorts of things ready for "Toyland—at the Foot of the Stairs," Wright-Metler Company, that I am 'way behind in my correspondence, but now the Sun has said "Goodbye" and started south and all the little birds who tell me when you are bad have gone along—SO—

"Better mind your P's and Q's
And do what you are told.
Don't ever "sass" your mother, dear,
Nor pout when teachers scold,
But always be polite and kind,
Say "thank you," also, "please";
Help all you can, the Baby mind
And NEVER, NEVER TEASE.
And if the birds' reports are good
And say you're growing better,
Just watch this space, some day you'll find,
I've sent another letter."

Yours affectionately,
SANTA.

Conservative men don't want clothes that dominate their personality, but clothes that are expressive of character and success.

Such clothes give more than an admirable fit—are more than all-wool, late style and fine tailoring. They are all that and, in addition, are the evidence of the wearer's good taste, thrift, knowledge of what's what and standing in the world of business and of manly men.

Hirsch, Wickwire, Society Brand and Michaels Stern Clothes

are visible proof of all the qualities in clothes and manhood that the world most admires and we are proud to sell them here, exclusively for this territory. And to finest quality, most perfect tailoring and latest style, we add conservative pricing fairly computed on cost and giving true values unapproachable elsewhere.

Smart New Apparel in Larger Sizes

Following the Stylsh Stout Show, it is with greater interest we present beautiful new modes for women of fuller figures.

Suits—Coats—Dresses

Sizes 38½ to 46½

SUITS adapted to the emphasis of longer lines come in tailored and demi-tailored modes and so designed as to achieve an atmosphere of youthful slimness, are being shown here in the season's handsomest styles and colors.

COATS come in the stout sizes in models that are even more graceful than those for slim young women, the draping of the wraps, so lovely this season, being especially suited to full formed figures.

Serge, tricotine, duvet de laine and veldyne are the more popular weaves found in the half sizes for stout figures and while many larger women prefer darker shades, the color range includes seal brown, reindeer, taupe, navy and black. Hudson seal, beaver, natural squirrel, nutria and near seal trim the more expensive models in the suits priced from

$75.00 to $189.50

Silvertone, chamo, velour, veldyne and ondulette are a few of the soft, deep-piled woolen found in 1920 coats and wraps and the colors range from taupe and nanking blue to beaver, seal brown, navy and black. Deep shawl collars distinguish many of the styles, with handsome furs adorning even some of the less expensive models. The prices range from

$49.75 to $250.00

Straight Lines and Draped Effects in Stylish Stout Dresses

—for while mignonettes are found with handsomely embroidered tunics as a particular feature, soft crepe satin, crepe de chine and charmeuse as well as woolen serge and tricotine dresses resort to other devices for producing an atmosphere of slenderness. Brown, navy and black are the principal colors in these handsome afternoon and street toilettes all moderately priced.

Meanwhile, We Are Continuing Our Great Sale of
